I Didn't Know That about Chevrolet! – Part 2

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Note: the citations presented in this article refer to Wikipedia article.

Beginning also in 1919, GMC commercial grade trucks were rebranded as Chevrolet, and using the same chassis of Chevrolet passenger cars and building light-duty trucks, sharing an almost identical appearance with GMC products.

Until 1921, Chevrolet Corporate headquarters were located at 57th and Broadway in New York City until April when the office was relocated to the General Motors Building at Cadillac Place in Detroit.[17] In January 1921 a General Motors management survey recommended that the Chevrolet Division be cancelled, but Alfred P. Sloan Jr. recommended that the division be saved and William S. Knudsen, a former Ford employee who oversaw production of the Model T,[17] was made Vice President of Operations and performance improved[17] In May 1925 the Chevrolet Export Boxing plant at Bloomfield, New Jersey was repurposed from a previous owner where Knock-down kits for Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac passenger cars, and both

Chevrolet and G. M. C. truck parts are crated and shipped by railroad to the docks at Weehawken, New Jersey for overseas GM assembly factories.[17]

Chevrolet continued into the 1920s, 1930s, and 1940s competing with Ford, and after the Chrysler Corporation formed Plymouth in 1928, Plymouth, Ford, and Chevrolet were known as the "Low-priced three".[18] In 1929 they introduced the famous "Stovebolt" overhead-valve inline six-cylinder engine, giving Chevrolet a marketing edge over Ford, which was still offering a lone flathead four ("A Six at the price of a Four"). In 1933 Chevrolet launched the Standard Six, which was advertised in the United States as the cheapest six-cylinder car on sale.[19] During the Great Depression the Chevrolet Master introduced a streamlined appearance, showing Art Deco influences and before and after the World War II era, the Chevrolet Deluxe and Chevrolet Fleetline found many buyers.

Chevrolet had a great influence on the American automobile market during the 1950s and 1960s. In 1953 it produced the Corvette, a two-seater sports car with a fiberglass body. In 1957 Chevy introduced its first fuel injected engine,[20] the Rochester Ramjet option on Corvette and Chevrolet Bel Air passenger cars, priced at $484 ($5,043 today).[21] In 1960 Chevrolet joined the newly popular "compact car" market by introducing the Corvair, with a rear-mounted air-cooled engine. In 1963 one out of every ten cars sold in the United States was a Chevrolet.[22]

During the 1960s and early 1970s, the standard Chevrolet, particularly the deluxe Chevrolet Impala series, became one of the United States' best-selling lines of automobiles in history. During that era, the mid-sized Chevrolet Chevelle which was used to introduce the Chevrolet Monte Carlo, and the economically priced Chevrolet Nova, which was the basis for the Chevrolet Camaro, all were commercially successful and included family sedans, practical station wagons, and sporty coupes and convertibles. As the popularity of small, fuel-efficient imported vehicles began to find buyers in the US during the 1970s and 1980s, the Chevrolet Vega was introduced while the Chevrolet Chevette was the result of international collaboration. By the mid-1980s, the Vega was gone and the Chevette was about to be discontinued. Lacking a line of competitive small cars, Chevrolet imported several Japanese models and re-badged them as Chevrolets. The Suzuki-sourced Chevrolet Sprint and the Isuzu-supplied Chevrolet Spectrum were a better match to compete against the popular Toyota Corolla and Honda Civic. The Chevrolet Citation was the division's first compact sized front-wheel-drive car along with the Chevrolet Cavalier, followed up by the Chevrolet Celebrity. Chevrolet during the 1990s formed a partnership with Toyota and introduced the Geo Prizm while also offering the domestically produced Chevrolet Corsica. As mid-sized family sedans began to gain popularity, the Chevrolet Lumina found many buyers and as minivans began to find buyers, the Chevrolet Venture followed the popular selling Chevrolet Trailblazer and Chevrolet Traverse SUV's.

The basic Chevrolet small-block V8 design has remained in continuous production since its debut in 1955, longer than any other mass-produced engine in the world, although current versions share few if any parts interchangeable with the original. [citation needed] Descendants of the basic small-block OHV V8 design platform in production today have been much modified with advances such as aluminum block and heads, electronic engine management, and sequential port fuel injection. Depending on the vehicle type, Chevrolet V8s are built in displacements from 4.3 to 9.4 litres with outputs ranging from 111 horsepower (83 kW) to 994 horsepower (741 kW) as installed at the factory. The engine design has also been used over the years in GM products built and sold under the Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Hummer, Opel (Germany), and Holden (Australia) nameplates.

In 2000, Chevrolet brought back the iconic Impala, although unlike its predecessors, this car was a mid-sized front-wheel drive four door sedan. It was produced until 2020, and the last generation (2014-2020) was larger and classified as a full-size passenger car.

In 2005, General Motors re-launched the Chevrolet marque in Europe, using rebadged versions of the Daewoo cars produced by GM Korea.[23]

The Chevrolet division largely recovered from the economic downturn of 2007–2010 through launching new vehicles and improving existing lines. GM began developing more fuel-efficient cars and trucks to compete with foreign automakers. In late 2010 General Motors began production of the plug-in hybrid Chevrolet Volt, sold as the Opel/Vauxhall Ampera in Europe,[24] which received multiple awards including the 2012 North American Car of the Year, European Car of the Year, and World Green Car of the Year. The Volt/Ampera family was the world's best-selling plug-in electric car in 2012 with 31,400 units sold.[25] The Opel/Vauxhall Ampera was Europe's top selling plug-in electric car in 2012 with 5,268 units, representing a market share of 21.5% of the region's plug-in electric passenger car segment.[26][27] Combined global Volt/Ampera sales passed the 100,000 unit milestone in

October 2015.[28] As of June 2016, the Volt family of vehicles ranks as the world's all-time top selling plug-in hybrid, and it is also the third-best-selling plug-in electric car ever, after the Nissan Leaf and the Tesla Model S.[29] Volt sales in the American market passed the 100,000 milestone in July 2016.[30]

In October 2016, GM began production of the Chevrolet Bolt EV, the first ever affordable mass market all-electric car with a range over 200 mi (320 km).[31][32][33] The Chevrolet Bolt won several awards including the 2017 Motor Trend Car of the Year award, the 2017 AutoGuide.com Reader's Choice Green Car of the Year, Green Car Reports Best Car To Buy 2017, Green Car Journal's 2017 Green Car of the Year, and was listed in Time magazine's Best 25 Inventions of the Year of 2016.[34]

On February 14, 2021, Chevrolet unveiled the 2022 Bolt EUV and redesigned Bolt EV.[35][36]

The Cedar Gap Baptist Church Car Show took place on July 16 in Seymour. Almost two dozen club members caravanned from Price Cutter on East Battlefield Sunday morning to Cedar Gap Baptist Church in Seymour. There was plenty of time to catch up with friends and to view the classic cars.

Classic Car Sunday attendees from the club included:

Larry and Helen Fortner	Steve and Terri Barrow
Bobby and Robin Goss	Charles and Diana Mahaffey
Steve and Marcia Bisher	Wade and Gerri Mitchell
Tom and Barbara Trospen	Carl and Kathy

MEETING MINUTES

Classic Chevy Club Meeting – July 8, 2023

The fourth club meeting of the year was held Sunday, July 8, 2023, at the Republic Recreation Center on Miller Road in Republic. This club meeting was held in conjunction with the club picnic. Lunch was served, Jenga was played, attendance was taken and has been included. Minutes were read. Treasurer's report was presented. Future events were discussed.

Attendees included

Barrow, Steve & Terri	Mahaffey, Charles & Diana
Berg, Tom & Chris	Mitchell, Wade & Gerri
Bisher, Steve & Marcia	Owen, Jess & Melinda
Burch, Frank & Sandy	Partlo, Dennis & Mary
Carter, C.L. & Mollie	Prose, Brian
Cox, Johnny & Beverly	Schmachtenberger, Carl & Kathy

Goss, Bobby & Robin	Trosper, Tom
Huyett, Jeanie & Bill	Walters, David & Yvonna Davis
Jennings, Mike & JJ	Wernet, Jack & Donna
Jennings, Pat & Dana
Kuhn, Dan & Mary

Weather was very nice with reasonable temperatures. The covered picnic area (civilian pavilion) was perfect.

The food was presented well by the club ladies. Catered fried chicken (I was awe stricken) was prepared with just the right quantity of spices.

The salads (ballads to my soul), of course, were brought by club members and complemented the main course. The rolls were the high-priest of yeast. Desserts were sweet treats to eat.

Next on the agenda was Jenga. The game blocks were meticulously stacked and Jess and Carl went bicuspid and cuticle until a tie was called.
